

Kidy'Board transparent board

Encouraging transparency in learning to write and draw!

Maped is innovating within its slate range for the back to school period with Kidy'Board: the first transparent educational slate which can be reused indefinitely. As early as kindergarten, children will start learning to write and draw in a fun way with the help of age-appropriate worksheets.

The intelligent slate with educational and adaptable content

The Kidy'Board slate has been designed as a real teaching tool. To encourage children to write their first letters and numbers, the thematic worksheets are tailored to the different levels, needs and desires of 3-7 year-olds. Designed in collaboration with school teachers, these worksheets are provided in the kit or can be downloaded from the Maped website. Slipped under the transparent slate, they encourage children to easily put into practice the knowledge acquired through their school curriculum.

The ultra-practical slate to be used and erased time and time again

The Kidy'Board slate is made from transparent plastic. It has a simple grid to guide children.

Its frame, which is fun and very nice to touch, allows the worksheets (or any other model), to be positioned under the slate and held steady.

The slate is very simple to handle, allowing children to easily and freely begin learning to use a marker on the Kidy'Board, both at school and at home.
